This presentation summarizes the results of research to evaluate various methods for predicting the camber of precast, pretensioned concrete bridge girders and to recommend possible modifications to improve the predictions.

The effects of various factors related to girder production were examined to assess their impacts on camber. The research work is sponsored by NCDOT which allowed collecting data from 382 prestressed concrete bridge girders.